With XenApp 7.5, Citrix adopted the same architecture that was introduced in XenDesktop 5 and refined in XenDesktop 7, namely, FlexCast Management Architecture (FMA). FMA is primarily made up of Delivery Controllers and agents. Delivery agents are installed on all virtual and/or physical machines that host and publish resources (named worker servers), while the controllers manage users ...

Citrix XenApp Performance Essentials consists of 5 chapters which although is relatively short it does make for an ideal companion book. It starts with design guidelines for IT Architects and then on to other chapters regarding optimizations for Citrix

XenApp server
performance, optimizing session start-up, end user experience and finally WAN connections.
