Train To Somewhere is an emotional historical fiction picture book written by Eve Bunting and illustrated by Ronald Himler. It is the story of a young child named Marianne, who is riding the orphan train. She is riding in hopes that her mother will pick her up at one of the stops after she starts a new life out West.

Name of Book: Train To Somewhere.

Author: Eve Bunting. Illustrator: Ronald Himler. Publisher: Clarion Books, New York.

Audience: Ages 8-13. Summary: From the mid-1850s to the late 1920s, “Orphan Trains” took children from the streets and orphanages of New York City to adoptive families in the West. Some of the children found loving homes. Others traded one sort of misery for another.

Jun 20, 2017 · Rachel's Mom reads aloud the book Train To Somewhere by Eve Bunting, illustrated by Ronald Himler.

Finally, it is Marianne alone who gets off the train at Somewhere with Miss Randolph. Standing at the station is an older couple who hold a wooden locomotive that they hoped to give to a little boy they would take home. However, they reach out to Marianne and we know it's a match as Marianne is lovingly embraced by her new family.

Train To Somewhere is a book based on the real Orphan Train that carried homeless children to small towns and farms in the Midwest in the hopes of placing them with caring families. This story tells about Marianne, an orphan, heading west on the Orphan Train with other children to be placed with a family.

In the introduction to Train To Somewhere, Eve Bunting tells the reader that while the names of the towns and the route the train takes are fictional, the Orphan Train was indeed real. From the 1850s to the 1920s, thousands of homeless children were sent from New York City by train to families in the Midwest in the hope they would be adopted.

May 11, 2018 · Train To Somewhere. I'd always wanted to try out the train. People said it was unpredictable. People said there was no way to know where you would end up. But it was the only way to get out of town. The day was hot and dusty, and as I walked down to the train station, I ...
